Dear Mssrs. Duval and Hague:

I read your letter this morning, after returning from Nevada. I played in Las Vegas, Reno and at both ends of Tahoe. Conditions are the same everywhere and they are as you have described them. I won moderately. But only with great difficulty, because I had to continually dodge cheats. If they weren't already there when I sat down, they were brought in as soon as I'd won a little or flashed a little money! I was successfully disguised and not recognized. All players were getting this same treatment.

I agree completely with the other various comments in your letter

Sincerely,

Dr. Edward O. Thorp
